a part of the peace

Students led a life of school and friends, weekends and wild times. Besides the familiar tests and term papers, there were Chieftain spirit weeks, pep rallies, games and dances. Munching mexican food at Robertos or Del Taco, catching a movie at the Clairemont Theater, hanging out at Horton Plaza — all were popular out-of-school activities. Meanwhile, glaring from bumper stickers on students' cars were the logos of KGB, 91X, and the Clairemont Surf Shop. On a larger scale were world events that changed the nation; tension in the Persian Gulf, the A.I.D.S. epidemic, and the largest stock market drop in history made an impact on everyone's life. And on a personal level were the latest styles, friends, dates, movies, and bands, in a year when David Bowie released his seventeenth album and showed he was still hot after twenty years. There were good times and bad times, but there was always something to look forward to . . .

FUN AND GAMES

Spirit week was a welcome boost of enthusiasm early in the school year. Color day let everyone shout their support for their class. Freshmen sported the most chic of purple clothing, while the sophomores shined in yellow couture. Juniors set the school on fire in red, and the seniors were a class act in pink. Punk day had the brave in black spikes. Fifties day took us back to a time of poodle skirts and leather jackets. Khaki and olive green permeated the school while everyone danced the conga on safari day. Outrageous orange and blue day was a great finale for spirit week dress up days — everyone had some school colors to show!

Lunchtime activities were an exciting break in the monotony of school. The pizza eating contest disgusted everyone but was a lot of fun. We all learned more than we ever wanted to know about intestinal air by watching the burping contest. Cheering on green footed friends roused up a great crowd during the frog race. No one volunteered to clean up after the banana cram, but almost everyone enjoyed watching others get smeared with banana. A D.J. and dancing on Friday closed a spirit week, which was great fun for all involved.

The Chiefs faced University City for the 1987 homecoming game. Even the spirited crowd and alumni couldn't cheer the Chiefs to victory. But though the Chiefs turned the ball over a number of times, they managed to tie with the Centurians. The cheerleaders led off halftime activities with a dance number. Other events included a stunning and unique performance by the Clairemont High School band. A parade of original homecoming floats followed. The sophomores took first place with their "Giligan's Island" float, while the cheerleaders caught "the Spirit Wave" for a second place win. The juniors "Rose High" and took third prize off the track. Halftime concluded with a parade of the homecoming court in a collection of classic Thunderbirds. Homecoming '87 — a great show of pride for Clairemont High.

2. "Hurry up and take the picture so you can help me get my finger unstuck."

3. Gonzo Mendez models the latest in Gucci chemistry fashion for fall.

4. AP Physics students calculate what angle and velocity are necessary to nail the gardener with a water balloon.

Believe it or not, classes are an important part of life at Clairemont High School. Maybe not the most important part, but important just the same. And while, for some, the word "class" may conjure up images of boring teachers lecturing for what seems to be twelve hours straight, there's always something interesting going on in (or out of) the classrooms on the Clairemont campus.

While no student (or teacher) believes school to be wonderful all the time, Clairemont students and staff worked together to achieve a successful school year. Pupils at Clairemont had an opportunity to take a wide variety of classes, and CHS continued to support unique programs such as A.V.I.D. and Model United Nations.

PEP RALLIES

What would high school be without pep rallies? They incite spirit and educate about school policy, activities, and organizations. Rallies are often forums for information about current student issues such as drunk driving. Most of all, pep rallies allow everyone to have a good time and show their stuff.

Cheerleaders, sports team members, coaches, administrators, teachers, flag and drill corps, the band — these are all integral parts of a pep rally. The teams get the school support they need and deserve as well as opportunities to educate about their sport. Coaches and administrators, teachers, and counselors become known by the students. Cheerleaders, flag and drill corps, and the band get to demonstrate what they were always practicing.

Of the 1987-88 pep rallies, the Homecoming assembly was touted as the most spirited. It was definitely followed by the winter rally, where coaches for winter sports were given presents by a Charlie Chieftain Santa Claus and candy canes were tossed to the crowd. The winter rally also included an exciting demonstration of girls' and boys' basketball — organization and commentary by Greg Lee.

SCHOOL SPIRITS

Halloween this year gave Chieftains an opportunity to transform themselves into almost anything imaginable. Clairemont High had a litter of social bunnies, a space cadet, and quite a few Indians.

The disgusting, the strange, and the incredibly blood-soaked were an important part of the Halloween festivities. Many girls sported shoulder pads and football jerseys, and a number of guys joined the cheerleading ranks for a day.

Even those who didn't dress up enjoyed the upbeat atmosphere on Friday the 30th. Clairemont's Halloween brought many people together. Friends were made, comparing costumes. Classes were full of enthusiasm and the spirit of Halloween.

All the fun and excitement that had been built up over a day of dressing up and having fun were let loose at the sophomore-hosted Halloween dance. Clairemont students showed up in full costume, ready to dance the night away. Halloween '87, Clairemont High style — what a blast!

7. Maybelline visits CHS — an "after" shot.

Clairemont High made a commitment to hold more dances during the school year, and to the joy (and amazement) of the students the commitment was realized. Informal dances were a great way to make friends.

Themes added enthusiasm and excitement. The first event of the school year was a football game and barbecue which culminated in a "getting acquainted" dance. When October 31st rolled around, Chieftains turned out in their costumes for a Halloween dance. Clairemont High celebrated imminent vacation at a hopping "turkey trot." The Jingle Bell Dance rang in the welcome holiday season with a crowd of red and green clad Chieftains. Everybody found their long-lost twin at the Doubles Dance. This year's dances were fun and spirit-raising . . . and they were enjoyed by all who attended!!

peace be with you

Every year has its scandals, heroes, and tragedies, but 1987-88 will stand out in our minds as a year which was definitely balanced between the inspiring and the sorrowful, innovations and obstacles. The following compilation highlights only some of the events of the year, but these are the events that characterize the year 1987-88.

Jessica Hahn, the Bakker bimbo.

Jim and Tammy Bakker, former television evangelists.

The political highlight of the decade was the "Irangate" scandal and the ensuing trial. The proceedings made a star out of boy-next-door Lt. Col. Oliver North. With a toothy grin and clean-cut "sincerity," the Lt. won the hearts and often the faith of America.

Short-range missiles were banned during the December Reagan-Gorbachev summit. The agreement, made in Washington, D.C., specified that short-range missiles would be removed both in NATO countries and all Soviet bloc nations.

Justice Robert Bork was appointed last year as a Supreme Court justice, but failed to receive Senate confirmation. The popular view was that Bork was too conservative on such issues as reproductive rights and equal rights for men and women.

The "crash" of 1987, now being characterized as a panic, is now being upheld historically as "creating a whole new financial reality." On Black Monday, Oct. 19, the market had a record drop: some 800 points.

Donna Rice and Gary Hart . . . in the lap of luxury?

The Reagan and Gorbachev summit — a promising talk.

This trader felt the tension of October 19, 1987.

Oliver North, a pillar of sincerity.

Fawn was Ollie's personal paper shredder.

Dubbed "The Year of the Bimbo," 1987 was filled with headlines about a certain type of woman. Every time you opened a magazine, you saw a bimbo — just how much you saw depended on the woman in question. Everyone got in on the act, from prominent political figures to prominent "religious" figures. Gary Hart had Donna Rice, Jim Bakker had Jessica Hahn, and Ollie North had Fawn Hall. The rallying cry of women in the news was "I am not a bimbo!" but in a society that idolized Vanna White, how many of us were willing to believe?

"Patient Zero" was the first person diagnosed as having AIDS. The former flight attendant was reportedly partly responsible for the quick spread of the disease. Diagnosed in 1978, Patient Zero failed to remedy his extremely promiscuous behavior. On the contrary, in his years of flying around the world, Patient Zero increased his activity in reaction to the "unfairness" of his having this terminal disease.

We all got to know Baby Jessica last year when the 18-month-old child fell into a deep, narrow abandoned well. Rescue efforts began immediately, but progress was slow due to tedious procedures necessary in order to keep from further injuring the child. Two days after the accident, Baby Jessica was lifted from the hole — tired and hungry, but healthy.

Entertainer Liberace died last year of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS). The singer/pianist/Las Vegas showman was known for his outlandish costuming and unique style.

Pope John Paul II made an official visit to America in 1987. The head of the Catholic Church, the Pope held mass in major American cities. His peaceful visit left many inspired.

Comedian Jackie Gleason, 71, died last year, as did artist Andy Warhol, director John Huston, and actor/dancer Ray Bolger, to name a few of those who have left us.

Surrogate parenting caused major controversy this year. The Baby M trial is the most famous of the conflicts, and although the birth mother sued for custody, the child remained with the biological father and his wife.

The situation in the Persian Gulf involved our military this year when Kuwait asked the U.S. to reflag its tankers, thereby taking them under American protection. Since the alternative was to let the Soviet Union get involved, America offered her protection to Kuwait and found herself in the middle of the Persian Gulf crisis.

Patient Zero . . . the one who started it all.

Entertainer Liberace, who departed this world this year.

Pope John Paul II makes contact with the masses.

Comedian Jackie Gleason will be missed.

The Persian Gulf — the crisis escalates.

Surrogate mother Ruth Whitehead in the empty room reserved for her baby.

We conducted a survey of Clairemont students. From the survey results we found out what Chieftains thought was hot and what was not. The surveys were anonymous, and quotes were selected from them, so the quotes that appear are not to be associated with the pictures next to them!

Michael Jackson . . . from "Bad" to worse.

"This was the most impossible year."

Bono of U2, your favorite group.

You people voted U2 as the best band, followed by INXS, the Cure, and Whitesnake. Almost 80% of you thought the worst was Michael Jackson, with the other 20% dispersed between Motley Crue and the Beastie Boys. According to you, "Need You Tonight" and "Push It" are the best songs. Worst songs? "Bad" by Michael Jackson and "Dude Looks Like a Lady" by Aerosmith.

There were many outstanding albums this year, and your favorites were New Order's "Substance," INXS's "Kick," Depeche Mode's "Music for the Masses," and the Cure's "Kiss Me, Kiss Me, Kiss Me." You voted the worst albums as "Bad" by Michael Jackson and "License to Ill" by the Beastie Boys.

Concerts? Chieftains know best. David Bowie's Glass Spider Tour, the Echo and the Bunnymen/Gene Loves Jezebel/New Order concert, and Roger in concert. Worst concerts? According to you, Heart and Motley Crue fit that description.

"Three men and a Baby" — the year's best movie.

The results are in . . . Clairemont students thought "Three Men and a Baby" was the best movie, with close followers "Wall Street" and "Fatal Attraction." You hated cinematic bombs such as "any movie that stars Madonna" and the holiday release "Batteries Not Included." Best actors were Eddie Murphy and Charlie Sheen, and popular opinion showed that Madonna and Oliver North need help in the talent department.

On television, "The Young Ones" and "Alf" were voted best shows. The least popular were "Dolly" and, again, "Alf." (There were, surprisingly enough, a few votes for Alf as both best and worst actor!)

"This year? Oh, it came . . . and it went!"

"I've made my best friends at Clairemont High . . ."

Saturday Night Live's "Church Lady," who originated "Well, isn't that special."

GUESS? . . . losing the edge?

"I'm impressed. People at this school are so . . . friendly!"

The best brand name of the year? There was no standout winner, but names like Generra, Quicksilver, Swatch, and Esprit appeared consistently. The big losers? Guess? and K-Mart brand. The favorite trends were anything acid washed, leather jackets, and safe sex. The trends that bugged? ANYTHING acid washed, crimped hair, and the Garfields people put in their car windows.

"Isn't that special" was the winner in the phrase category, but "tell him where he lives" and "kilt ya!" were strong runners up. Your least favorites phrases were any form of "dude," "trick," or "D.A./O.A.M."

Yes, our poll did contain something about school!! Your favorite classes were American Literature, Mr. Lee's first period math class and consumer math. Everyone seemed to agree that any subject was more interesting than school.

Christian Dior's Poison, Clairemont's perfect potion

BMW . . . the "ultimate driving machine."

Who doesn't have a dream car? Most students thought any brand new BMW was the best "driving machine" around. There are quite a few of you who wouldn't mind driving a Ferrari or waking up to your own brand-new Lamborghini. What vehicles brought nightmares? Most Clairemont students consider the thought of finding a Pinto, Yugo, or Hyundai in their driveway as worse than death. Oh, and those of you who drive love freeway 163 and die to drive Hollywood 101. Everyone agreed they'd do anything to keep their car off notoriously busy I-8.

Where did you all Chieftains hang out this year? According to you, we could find Clairemont students many places. To find a lot of Chieftains, however, one must make a trip to Tijuana (affectionately known as TJ). You also liked to bum around UTC, Plaza Bonita, or your own home. All around most popular hangout? Anywhere but school!!

San Diego is right on the coast, so we have our choice of beaches. You declared your favorite beach as La Jolla Shores, but you just might spot the cream of the Clairemont crop at Wind and Sea, Pacific Beach, or Scripps this summer, so look out.

Chinese food rose to the top as your pick for tastiest eats. Mexican food from Alberto's, Roberto's, and Los Panchos was a second choice. A number of Chieftains confessed — they just can't face life without their Cool Ranch Doritos. And with your food, it's Coke over Pepsi all the way, although quite a few Clairemont students let us know they preferred Hawaiian Punch or . . . eggnog(???).

We've got a scent-alert high school, and the potion of choice is Poison. What other scents linger in the halls? For guys, Drakkar was the only cologne to buy, but girls also found themselves wearing Obsession, Tatiana, and Tea Rose.

For your further information (and our amusement) the favorite letter of the alphabet is X . . . by a landslide!

The king and queen were Rick Villiard and Jennifer Taylor. Tracey Carone and Jeremy Hidalgo represented the junior class, and Oscar Sanchez and Sophia Lamas were elected to represent the tenth grade. Freshman attendants were David Salenius and Jessica Rodriguez.

If you took a look around the Clairemont High School parking lot this year, you were sure to see people scamming rides and trying to start their cars. Transportation (and the lack thereof) are major concerns of every teenager, and Clairemont High students were no exception.

THE GREAT ESCAPE

The Great Escape is a community effort to show Clairemont High and Marston Middle School students that there are fun activities more healthy than drug and alcohol use.

This highly anticipated event took place on the football field, with many people volunteering their time and attention to the hobbies that bring joy to their leisure hours. Booths were set up showing a multitude of activities, including boating, cooking, textile crafts, stamp collecting, and much more.

A band called Bastille played to the crowd, and prizes were awarded to the winners of an essay contest with a drug-free theme. The Great Escape prompted many people to think about the place substance abuse has in their lives. Thanks to the effort of Clairemont High School, parents, and community members, every student got to see that drugs aren't necessary to just have a great time!

The teachers and staff at Clairemont were an integral part of school. It was they who prompted learning, which is, after all, the whole point of school. But just like students, those "never changing" adults actually had diverse interests and personalities. Dr. Specht was famous for his quick work on the chalkboard. Dressing up for every spirit day, Ms. Moore and Mr. Blume always drew attention. Remember Coach Lee's Elvis Costello complex, Ms. Duris and her school plays, Joe Olivas and his John Wayne accent? Ms. Ramsey ran marathons, Mrs. Olson went to every Charger game, and Cindy Aiken showed that she, too, had been a cheerleader in high school. At school, the faculty wrote recommendations, ran clubs and programs, taught, and attended meeting after meeting. The administrators had the last word, the secretaries took care of everything, and the aides provided a lot of very helpful support (and work!). Deemed underpaid and underappreciated, it was the faculty who taught us a lot of what we know . . .

ADMINISTRATION

The administration was perhaps the most important branch of the school's faculty. It kept the entire school running. Administrators not only saw to the general discipline and behavior of the school, but performed many other duties as well. A few of these included ensuring that bills were paid, dealing with parents and surrounding "neighbors," and most important of all, making sure that the students were working as well as they possibly could.

The counselors made this school accessible for the students. Through them, we were able to revise our schedules, work on grade problems, and use the large resources the school had to offer. Unfortunately, this year we lost Ms. Eves, but she was ably replaced by Mrs. Rowe. Counselors worked as links between the students and the school and teachers. Through some mysterious way, the counselors were able to make sure that every student received the best possible education.

SUCCESS

"To laugh often and much; to win the respect of intelligent people and affection of children; to earn the appreciation of honest critics and endure the betrayal of false friends; to appreciate beauty, to find the best in others; to leave the world a bit better, whether by a healthy child, a garden patch or a redeemed social condition; to know even one life has breathed easier because you have lived. This is to have succeeded.

— Ralph Waldo Emerson

If I have accomplished even one of these things, then I will feel as if I have succeeded during my stay at Clairemont High School.

Thanks to all of you for everything!"

SUPPORTIVE STAFF

Clairemont's supportive staff was the lifeblood of the school for the past year.

It includes the career center, the financial department, the library, security, the attendance branch, and last, but certainly not least, the general secretaries. The supportive staff gives the school life. Through the staff the students and administration were able to function. The people in the career center helped us with college placement, career planning, and general advice. We used the library in many ways during the past year for all manners of research and pleasure. The financial secretary acted as an accountant for the entire school, and the general secretaries were, once again, able to pull everything together. With the help of this large staff, Clairemont reached the heights it did this year.

Early every morning, the sounds of banging pots and pans could be heard coming from Clairemont High School. If you ever arrived before the bells, you might have seen our cafeteria staff busily preparing some hot, tasty, mouth-watering dishes. They were a vital part of our school. Without their dedication and efforts, many of us would have gone hungry during lunch.

Ever wonder why our school is always so clean? The custodians were the people who did the cleaning. They spent hours daily picking up the trash and cleaning the grounds. Though we never saw them, we all greatly appreciated their efforts.

Teachers were forced to work long, hard days. Unfortunately, even though they did work efficiently and diligently, there was still a great deal of work that remained to be done each day. Thankfully, we had the teacher assistants and aides to help them. The aides were a special part of the school because they fit in between the students and the teachers. They were old enough to be respected by students, but young enough so that special friendships were formed.

organized peace

Putting together the school paper, putting on a school play, putting on a show at halftime and putting the Calumet were jobs of the members of various organizations at C.H.S. From running for office to eating French food, there was no end to the activities that enabled students to get together, meet others with a common interest, and accomplish something in the bargain. There were clubs for achievement, culture, service, school spirit, music, student government, science, and just plain strangeness

Teachers and students alike have commented on the amazing amount of spirit our Chiefs have shown this year. A large part of this spirit can be attributed to our A.S.B. This year the A.S.B. worked hard putting on our many dances, most notably Homecoming and the A.S.B. Ball. They spent many hours organizing fundraisers, getting DJ's, and promoting spirit weeks. Because of their dedication and enthusiasm, school was just a little bit more fun.

The 1988 Calumet staff did their best to make this year's annual different and exciting. This year's editor, Roxanne Ruzic, had new and unusual ideas to differentiate the yearbook from those that preceded it. The staff worked hard to help her, and even with the impossible deadlines, never-ending copy, numerous photographs, and nervous breakdowns that occurred almost daily, they somehow managed to survive and produce a yearbook that they hope will provide long-lasting memories.

Roxanne Ruzic (editor): The editor of the yearbook had the upper hand. It was she who determined the theme, cover, division pages, and closing. From keeping an eye on deadlines and trying to keep some semblance of a coherent book to approving other staff members' work and dancing around the yearbook room, Roxanne pretended to take charge. Her most familiar exclamation was "Layouts, layouts!" the most common question and response "Roxanne, how do I do this?" "I don't know; do I look like I know what I'm doing?" Sometimes she was mean, but mostly she was just weird. She had a great time working long into the night on the yearbook.

Mr. Norman Moon (advisor): Using his artistic expertise, Mr. Moon advised the yearbook staff. He was responsible for maintaining the budget and dealing with Busco Nestor Studios and Taylor Publishing Company, as well as overseeing the yearbook as a whole.

Student Life: Scott Lookabaugh, Cynthia Ruzic (copy editor) not shown: Jennifer Ryan (section editor). The Student Life section of the yearbook had the responsibility of covering student's activities, attitudes, and personalities. They had a fantastic year conducting surveys, taking pictures, and writing about the year's events. The Student Life section has more color pages than ever, and the hard work that went into the yearbook shows. Everyone in the section is proud of the yearbook's improvements.

Tri's not under stress; he's like this normally.

Seniors: Carie Winger (index), April Harrelson, Stefanie Mount (section editor). This edition of the Columet is the last 'peace' of Clairemont that the Class of '88 could hold on to. It was with this knowledge that Stefanie, April and Carie strove to make the senior section something to remember. With sixteen color pages they added color candids and a full color photo of the entire class, which was a definite improvement over last year. Another time-consuming addition was the senior memories. Hopefully years from now the Class of '88 will enjoy reading them. The best wishes for you, Class of '88.

Organizations: Anh Nguyen, Lauren Griffin, Tuanh Do (section editor). This year, organizations was in charge of arranging dates for club pictures, getting candid shots taken, writing copy, and making layouts. They put a lot of time and effort into doing the best job they could. Its members were dedicated and hard working students who didn't stop until they got the job done. It took a while before they got the hang of things, but they eventually did and are glad to have the experience gained from yearbook.

2. Stefanie works to overcome that speech impediment.
3. Copying out of last year's book, Roxanne? (They'll never know . . .)

Faculty: Chris Malstead (section editor), Bart Daniel, Tri Huynh. The faculty section was very busy this year. They spent hours compiling lists of teachers, aides, and administrators and photographing them. They made a great effort to get faculty baby pictures, though some were afraid to part with them. Despite the overwhelming odds against it, they were able to put together a somewhat interesting section.

Sports: Tracey Politi, Mary Lou Welsh, Eric Kvigne (section editor). Not Shown: Jennifer Bell. This section spent most of its time after school at various athletic events. It took a team effort to cover the various responsibilities of taking pictures and interviewing coaches. The tremendous drive and commitment produced by this team was possible because of the individual's interest in sports. Although team photos were difficult to organize with coaches, the sports section hung tough with that Chieftain spirit and came through in the end.

Underclass: Diana Contreras, Michael Cole, Mari Kleven, Kim Worobec (section editor). The underclass staff kept themselves very busy this year. Each staff member was in charge of a particular grade. Correcting misspelled names, checking each student's grade level, and designing layouts constantly kept them on their toes. Their hard work and everlasting dedication definitely paid off. They derived satisfaction from knowing they did their part for this year's annual.

This year brought many changes to the school newspaper, The Arrow. For the first time since 1958, The Arrow used in-house publishing. With the help of a new Macintosh Plus computer, and with the cooperation of the graphic arts department, the entire newspaper was produced by the school. The staff gained experience in typesetting and advertising as well as writing. With the assistance of advisor Pam Ramsey and editor Renee Lasky, the Arrow staff turned out a new and improved newspaper.

appealing the crowd

This year, students were a lot more spirited than usual. The upbeat, positive attitude showed up at the pep rallies. A large part of the credit was due to the cheerleaders this year. They worked hard, putting a lot of time into perfecting cheers. They averaged two games a week cheering at Volleyball, Soccer, Football, Wrestling, and Basketball. This past summer, Varsity Cheerleaders went to camp at U.C. Irvine. Continuing in last year's tradition, there were two new male cheerleaders, Larry Barker and Aaron Brown. The cheerleaders represented our school when they went to Sea World on Oct. 31 to take part in a production for Teen Miss America. On Dec. 18, they went to Sea World and cheered on the Special Olympics. They've done an excellent job this year, demonstrating lots of enthusiasm and spirit.

These two activities are open to anyone, male or female, who tries out the year before and is accepted. The only requirement that must be met is a 2.0 academic and citizenship G.P.A. This year there were six J.V. cheerleaders and five mascots. The mascots did skits and promoted crowd control at pep rallies, contributed ideas for cheers and routines, went to games, and made signs and posters. They also attended the Special Olympics at Sea World.

The J.V. cheerleaders cheered by themselves and with Varsity cheerleaders at games and pep rallies. Two J.V. cheerleaders, Jolene Tower and Beth Wierzibecki, cheered at the Miss Teenage America Pageant. The mascots and J.V. cheerleaders are dedicated spirit representatives all year round.

This year's squad of twenty girls was led by Mr. Keith Galasso, who juggled the responsibility of both flag and drill teams. Together with the band, they worked hard at representing CHS in parades such as the Mother Goose Parade and both the La Jolla and Pacific Beach Christmas parades. They added spirit and enthusiasm during halftime at basketball games. They also competed against other California high schools in Anaheim during the second semester. They have participated in concerts throughout the community in places such as Seaport Village and Sea World in support of Special Olympics.

Led by Mr. Galasso, this year's chorus was a stunning success. Enhanced by a large membership with many well-trained voices, they developed a maturity in their sound. Chorus was privileged to represent Clairemont in such prestigious places as Seaport Village and Sea World. They also participated in the Solo and Ensemble Festival and competed in the Vocal Jazz Workshop hosted by Dick Grove.

Around Clairemont, they caroled before the Christmas break and stopped by Coach Cravens' house on Christmas Eve. Special congratulations to Erin Baker for his fine audition for Sea World's City Streets routine. His exemplary performance reflects the chorus members' effort throughout the year.

Tandas is a service club that extends throughout the community. An Indian word meaning friendship, this club is open to all students with good citizenship who are willing to give their time and effort helping others. This year the Tandas club helped Senior Citizens Incorporated and organized a canned food drive for the needy at Christmas. During the spring they went to Anaheim to participate in the leadership weekend sponsored by the Soroptimist International. Advised by Mrs. Margaret Dreher, Tandas is co-sponsored by the Soroptimist Womens Community Service Club.

SEMINAR, M.U.N.

Led by advisors Pam Ramsey, Ilaria Krejer and Betty Olson, Seminar is a club for academically accelerated students. Seminar students are put in an environment which encourages them to display and share their individual talents. They meet once a week to hear and speak with guest speakers or to give their own seminars.

Model United Nations is a program designed for students who have an interest in international politics and world affairs. Going to conferences at colleges such as UCSD, UC Riverside, and SDSU, the students developed their research and debating skills, representing the views of foreign countries on pressing world concerns. C.H.S. is one of two schools in the nation that also puts on HS own conference for junior high school students at the end of the year. This unique feature, along with its other attributes, make the program a worthwhile endeavor that deserves to continue for many years.

ACADEMIC TEAMS

Academic Decathlon: This year's Academic Decathlon was held in November at Palomar College. Top academic students from all over San Diego County spent a day competing for medals in such subjects as the arts, languages, mathematics, social studies, and economics. This year's Clairemont winners were Shanda Magee, who won a silver medal for science, and Lorna Swanson, who won a bronze medal in economics.

Academic Team: The Academic Team, coached by Betty Olson and Ilaria Krejer, was a team of students who competed against other San Diego City Schools to see who could accurately answer the greatest number of questions in the shortest amount of time. Participants had to be reasonably quick with answers as well as have a wide variety of knowledge. At the end of the year the top teams competed in playoffs, not unlike sports teams.

C.S.F.

C.S.F. stands for the California Scholastic Federation. The requirement that has to be met in order to join is a 3.5 grade point average with no F's or U's. C.S.F. participates in several activities throughout the year, including a trip to Disneyland on C.S.F. night, which occurs once a year. There is a reception at the end of each year honoring C.S.F.'s life members, seniors who have belonged to C.S.F. for at least six semesters. They also fund raise and set up a booth for Sadie Hawkins. C.S.F. is a club that rewards students who work hard throughout the year.

ASTRONOMY

Clairemont is the only San Diego city school with an observatory. The Astronomy Club taught students how to use the telescope and identify constellations. They went on overnight trips to the desert and mountains, bringing along their mobile telescope, which they exhibited at the Great Escape. They also went to the Laguna Mountains to use S.D.S.U.'s and Mt. Palomar's observatories, which have even more advanced telescopes, to observe planets, stars, and galaxies.

FRENCH CLUB

The French Club organized many exciting cultural activities throughout the year. They sampled French foods, such as pastries and cheeses. They even had a potluck. The club also went to French restaurants and saw French films and plays. Finally, they had a charity fund raiser in which they collected canned food and distributed it to the needy.

SPANISH CLUB

This year's Spanish Club was headed by Senora Lancaster. Included in their activities was a field trip to Tijuana, Mexico. While there, they visited the cultural center. They also went to Las Posadas, a Mexican Christmas celebration in Old Town.

RUSSIAN

Russian, a course not available at many schools, is a special offering at Clairemont High. C.H.S. sponsors not only a course but also a club. The club participated in many fun activities such as going to museums to view icons and Russian art works. They ate Russian food and saw movies, musicals, and ballets such as The Nutcracker, composed by Tchaikovsky, a Russian composer. Last, but not least, the Russian Club goes to what Mrs. Krejer calls a "shindig," a festival occurring semi-annually in the fall and spring.

SPORTS

Union

Among the Clairemont sports were the old and the new. Football was popular this year, and C.H.S., early on, looked like quite a team. With a good series of wins, the team seemed bound for glory until quarterback Lamont Jackson's jaw was injured in a game against Patrick Henry. With the impact, he was out for most of the season, and so were the Chiefs. But super-athlete Chris Box, who made history four years ago as the first freshman ever to play varsity football at C.H.S., was chosen as Player of the Year for the Western League and First Team All-League. His participation in a number of sports, football, wrestling, track, and basketball among them, exemplified the athletes' dedication at Clairemont. The teams might not have always won, but the athletes were out there, performing for a crowd or just a handful of fans. Soccer, swimming, basketball, badminton, track, softball and volleyball were among the possibilities. Wrestlers were tough, and water-polo enthusiasts got their first taste of the sport at Clairemont this year. It seems the only common sport not offered at C.H.S. was girls' tennis (cancelled this year in favor of water polo) . . .

Clairemont's Varsity Wrestling team has been a consistent and raging success. Since three years ago when the team shocked the district and took CIF, Coach Knupple has made Clairemont a force to be reckoned with. An impressive league record for the past four years of twenty and zero accentuates this point.

With many returning wrestlers, the team has been very experienced. The tough and determined personalities of all the athletes have produced their third CIF championship in a row. Mario Cole and Chris Box made an especially strong showing in CIF with their first place victories. Carlos Armenta and Ulisses Hernandez placed second with Mauricio Espinoza and Juan Romanos taking third.

The team has made Clairemont, and especially Coach Knupple, very proud. A finer group of athletes would be hard to find. Senior Chris Box deserves special notice for breaking two school records, for the most wins and the most pins. With athletes such as these just goes to show that Clairemont can't be beat!

The 1987 Clairemont Varsity football team started off with a record of 3-0. With Lamont Jackson quarterbacking, the offensive plays were outstanding. In the fourth game on the Chieftain's home field, Jackson was injured and taken out of the game. The Chiefs lost their perfect record that game, ending with a score of 21-7 in favor of Patrick

Henry.

This season ended with a record of 4-5 and one tie against University City. Although the Chiefs had misfortunes with the injuries of players, they kept their spirit and drive for a prosperous season. Of course the Chiefs have been and always will be Hungry, Quick, and Aggressive! CHIEFS!

Bogar Lozano

Lead by Coach Gibbins, junior varsity football produced a valiant effort against some of the league's toughest teams. Their record of one and nine doesn't give credit to the team's determination and perseverance.

The tough attitude these athletes had is exemplified by the quarterback's eleven touchdown passes during league play. Against Mission Bay, our defense kept their offense to six points during the first half, though they had previously maintained an average of thirty points a game. In another game, Bogar Lozano returned two kickoffs, running eighty yards for a touchdown on each. Unfortunately, one was called back for a penalty.

Lack of experience was the team's main problem toward a winning drive. Rules of the game aren't easily recalled under pressure in some cases. In one game the Chiefs' quarterback threw an interception pass which was run for a touchdown. After the play was completed, one of the offensive linemen asked Coach Gibbins if he was allowed to tackle the runner. The season overall could be described as a learning experience, but the players still came out with their heads held high, looking forward to next year.

The junior varsity wrestling team possessed many excellent athletes that carried the Chieftain spirit to new heights. Although their record doesn't show many wins, they generally outperformed their opponents. Most of the team's losses were due to matches forfeited because the team didn't have a wrestler to fill the position against higher population schools.

This in no way hindered the team, however. A good performance came from Danny Chouinard, who improved enough and wrestled varsity enough to earn a varsity letter. Another excellent performance was from Fabian Martinez, who lost only twice in the season and placed first at the All-City Junior Varsity Tournament.

Arturo Escobedo was undefeated as JV wrestler and even wrestled up one weight class from 140 to 147 at CIF to help the Varsity win. The team spirit stayed high throughout the entire season because of determined performances from these exemplary wrestlers. Way to go Chiefs!

The boys' varsity basketball team didn't fare as well this year as expected based on last year's performance. After losing many starting players who graduated, Coach Lee had to train many new ones. Despite these setbacks, they played with respect. Many of the games lost were very close, with the other team coming out on top in the last few seconds. Coach Lee commented on the game they won, "We beat the league champion, Kearny. That was the only game we won; kind of strange."

The team did play excellently overall when compared to the schools it was up against. One of the outstanding athletes of the team was Ray McDavid, who made first string on the all-league team. He also took first place in the league dunking contest. Other exemplary players were graduating seniors David Koonin and Lamont Jackson; both excelled in the sport. Good job, Chiefs!

This year's girls' basketball team was unfortunate to have lost some of their returning players, but with the help of Coach Don Miller and the vets, the rookies blended in very well. The starting five consisted of guards Kelly Smith and Ericka Weber, forwards Jennifer Bell and Heather Mottler, and center Maria Draskovic.

The team's scores don't give justice to the hard work and effort put in by everyone on the team. This year there were a lot of new girls that had to learn the ropes of basketball, but with the Coach's hard practices the team began to blend together.

The Chiefs' win against U.C. was a very enlightening game. "I think it gave us a lot of encouragement. It showed us what we really could do," said Jennifer Bell. Teamwork was a very big factor in the U.C. game. The girls all worked together and gave each other much support. The Chiefs were really moving.

The junior varsity boys' basketball team had an impressive showing this year. With a league record of four and six, the team showed improvement. Louis Demurguia attributes this success to the "unity and teamwork" the players possessed.

Jamie Gerstenslager offered an exemplary year with an average of twenty-three points and twelve rebounds per game. Louis Demurguia also had an average of eight assists per game.

These outstanding individual performers were accented by the rest of the team's work. The cohesiveness of the players in general made the year possible. Their spirit and sportsmanship set an example for the sport.

Clairemont's girls' junior varsity basketball team displayed much dedication and energy throughout the entire year. With Coach Taylor putting an emphasis on skill building and fun, these girls are next year's varsity winners. The team had a good turnout with many returning J.V. players. Overall it was a fine year for the entire squad. Good job, Chiefs!

V. BASEBALL

The varsity baseball team was a competitive group of individuals. They were strengthened by much experience from many returning players and much talent to choose from. Coming

The '88 boys' soccer team experienced many difficulties but were still able to get through the season with two wins against Mission Bay and Patrick Henry. Girls' soccer had a fine year in the '88, season with a league finish of fourth place. With five players new to the sport, the team as a whole showed a willingness to win. Coach Waters attributes their success to "the attitude of the girls' coming out; they were willing to put in the effort needed."

Of the new players, Tracey Caron was especially good on defense. She had never played soccer before and Coach Waters said she "wouldn't have known what to do without her." Of the veterans, Clairemont for the first time had four-year returning players Denyce Hobgood and Vikki Sanger. An especially determined effort from Dorothy Wagoner, the goal keeper, earned her 185 saves for league.

The team, as Coach Waters puts it, "just keeps getting better." It was the first time Clairemont tied and then beat La Jolla. All the determination and perseverance paid off. Congratulations girls' soccer!

TRACK

The Clairemont track team looked good. They had a comparatively smaller team, but those members they did have were excellent. This was shown by their impressive performance in the invitational.

Along with the new athletes, this was Coach Blume's first year coaching. Matt Little described his abilities as "awesome." Coach Blume was also helped by returning Coaches Osmon and Taylor. Their coaching teamwork set an example for the rest of the athletes.

Some of the outstanding members were sprinters Matt Little, Maria Simone, and Jennifer Taylor. Cerci Moore also received high marks in the long jump. The team has been blessed with much improvement by these returning members. Overall, the team as a whole also made us very proud.

The girls' cross-country team was made up of three new recruits with second year returning runners, Elizabeth Contreras and Deena Peterson. Based on the determined effort given by all the team members, they were expected to do better than they had. Their record doesn't do justice to the positive attitude the team had.

For the first time in almost a decade, the Chiefs donned water polo caps and took to the pool. The young team, consisting mostly of freshmen and sophomores, competed admirably against varsity squads from all over the league that boasted starting line-ups of four-year veterans. Though no one on the team had ever before played the sport, they pulled together quickly and began looking like a real team after only a few games. Team captain Ben Kiblinger did a fine job in the hole position. Junior Kevin Miller, the team MVP, was a great asset to the team, not only because of his speed and high scoring percentage, but because he is a lefty — a helpful quality for a team. Erick Nelson caught on quickly to being goalie and was able to block with the best of them by the end of the season. Although the new team did not win any games, it was far from a disappointing season. Coach Earnest is looking forward to next year's returning players who have acquired a taste for the game and are even more hungry for a win.

The first class to complete four years at C.H.S., the seniors have come a long way since those "ninth graders go home" signs back in 1984. Lauded as the most spirited group in memorable history, the class of '88 was noted for its immense treasury, fine academic standing, and a controversial Homecoming float that had the administration up in arms back in October. Over the past few years the seniors saw styles come and go, from shirts buttoned all the way up to the neck to mini skirts and crimped hair. Some spent hours filling out long, tedious college applications or otherwise determining life after high school. Senior year was the last chance for Clairemont sports, dances, and frisbee in the parking lot. It was the time for senior breakfast, Grad Night, and, of course, Prom. Friendships were made, romances came and went, and some lingered. There is no one way to universally express the many aspects of these very special last four years. It was the people that made the class of '88, so raise your glasses to the seniors, and here's a toast to their future . . .

THE UPPER CLASS

The senior class of 1988 has come a long way. From humble roots as Clairemont's first freshman class to having more school spirit than the last several senior classes, this group has stepped apart from the rest. Mr. Thorpe, of the AVID program, described this progression best by saying, "This senior class's evolution has been eloquent."

This class has had a reputation of being a success oriented group. From the entire group taken collectively to the individual "peaces" of the whole, this class took on a challenge with style. This year's seniors were, "self starters, self motivated hard workers. If they decided to do something they followed through and did it," said coach Krupens. This determined attitude was shown to its fullest extent when this class, as juniors, was threatened with the abolition of the block schedule. The students and the staff rallied to its defense and eventually convinced the board of education of its effectiveness.

The statistics echo this commitment to achievement. The district's 12th grade dropout rate is 14.9% whereas Clairemont's is only 11.5%. "Discipline problems are down," noted the Vice Principal, Mr. Schroeder. "An increased motivation for post secondary school has shown that this year's seniors aren't satisfied with only a high school diploma."

Indeed, the class of '88 was much noted for its goal setting. It wasn't satisfied with the satisfactory, but instead strove for the exemplary. Mr. Thorpe attributed its success to a variety of reasons. "They are adept at changing, and adjusting their views to a complex society. This class has an amalgam of perseverance, intelligence, compassion and curiosity about why we exist. You are the ones looking for the answer. Of all the other people, such as Socrates and Plato, looking for this answer, the class of '88 has a chance of finding it."

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

This elite group was elected in 1987 by the graduating class of 1988 as their class leaders. Jeff Rutland, president, and Matt Little, Vice-President, campaigned as a team for Junior class officers in the 1986 class elections. Their first slogan in 1986, "Rutland and Little: The team for excellence" was followed by "Vote Asparagus" in 1987. Jeff and Matt triumphed both years, but in '87 Roxanne Ruzic, secretary, April Harrelson, treasurer, and Rosie King, senior publicity, were added to the team.

Roxanne, the brains of the operation and part-time comedienne, has been a part of the Academic Team, the Academic Decathlon Team, and Seminar, and wants to become a chemical engineer. April, after four years of volleyball and swimming, would like to pursue a career in sports medicine. Rosie has been involved in swimming, volleyball, and cheerleading. She wants to marry rich, become a wealthy woman, and live an exciting life. Jeff, a varsity letterman in football and baseball, plans to go on to college, Pepperdine, and become a teacher. Matt has also participated in football, but is better known for his manly expertise on the track field. Matt would like to start his own business and lead a (re)productive life.

Leaders of today and tomorrow, the officers of 1988 would like to thank all of the seniors who made this year the best.

Jeff Rutland — President

Matt Little — Vice-President

Roxanne Ruzic — Secretary

April Harrelson — Treasurer

Rosie King — Senior Publicity

THE WORKING CLASS

Car payments, car insurance, gas, clothes, prom, grad-nite, the list goes on. An endless amount of expenses bombarded Clairemont's seniors. Knowing that parents were less than willing to fork over the bucks, we were forced to go out into the real world and get . . . JOBS! Most of us had been working since 11th grade, so the job market wasn't anything new. Knowing that well-paying, prestigious jobs were unobtainable, we stooped to working in the dreary grease holes known as fast food restaurants. A few were lucky and found jobs bagging groceries at Vons or working at the local movie house, but the rest of us sweated it out at Taco Bell, Del Taco, various pizza parlors and other assorted fast food joints. The Class of '88 was not only the "upper class" but also the "working class."

1. "Say cheesel" "What? More cheese on your pizza?" asks Pete.
2. Angie tries suggestive selling.
3. Jeanne enjoys the excitement of an afternoon at Vons.
4. Mike looks like he's ready to throw his fries.

5. Do these two go everywhere together?
6. "Yes I love my job," says Tim McMahan.
7. Sandy Flores: A happy Taco Bell employee.

hairpieces and other ornaments of fashion

Right: Tuanh Do is wearing: safari print top, $32, cotton pants, $29, leather sandals, $60, safari hat, $28, leopard print scarf, $12, leather belt, $36, canvas bag, $16. All clothes by Banana Republic.

Not shown: Renee Lasky

The top ten, the creme de la creme, this elite group of seniors has qualified for a title of excellence. To C.H.S. they represent the true spirit of learning. Though they maintained the top ten cumulative grade point averages through high school, they were not without individual style. Here, these "model students" helped show off the fashions for 1987-88.

Far right: April Harrelson is wearing: cycling top by Raleigh, $40, lycra biking pants by Adidas, $35, Campagnolo cap, $6, bicycle by Rossin, $1200.

Immediate right: Claudia Copeland is wearing: lace bustier, $36, lace skirt, $29, leggings, $39, jacket, $39, studded patent leather boots, $75, cinch belt, $9, lycra gloves, $9, studded leather choker, $25. All by Gamma Gamma for the Avant-Garde.

Far upper left: Shanda Magee is wearing: ski jacket by Bogner, $438, stretch pants by Roffe, $165, ski gloves, $52, cotton turtle neck, $18, down filled hat, $33. All clothes from Pat's Ski and Sport.

Upper center: Jeff Rutland is wearing: leather jacket by Philippe Monet, $350, linen/cotton pants by Mexx International, $46, cotton button-up shirt by Guess?, $60, silk tie by Insignia, $13. All clothes from Brass Rail, Nordstrom.

Immediate upper left: Amanda Curtis is wearing a houndstooth checked two-piece outfit with blazer and pleated mini skirt, $98, and straw hat, $12. All by Contempo Casuals.

MOST DEDICATED CHIEFTAIN

Denyce Hobgood and Aaron Brown

School spirit is what set these two Chiefs apart from the rest. Last year's Chairman of Student Affairs and this year's Chairman of Hospitality, Aaron was an active part of C.H.S. His participation in football, cheer, and golf also distinguished him as a dedicated Chieftain. Denyce was a big part of A.S.B. for four years. She was class Vice President of her freshman and sophomore years, Vice President of A.S.B. her junior year, and President of A.S.B. this year. Her long-standing dedication to the school was also shown by her participation in soccer and softball, her work as President of S.A.D.D. and an overall enthusiasm that was exemplified by her involvement in the Rowdies. When it comes to the spirit of orange and blue, these two had enough for the whole school.

CLASS CLOWN

Rosie's outrageous personality set her apart as the female counterpart of class clown. She spread her enthusiasm to the school by participating as one of the spirited mascots. Here, she displays her punky, punky attitude with mohawk and all.

CLASS CLOWN

Brent Beltran

Brent won his position as class clown by using his natural talent of being absurd. His constantly witty and spontaneous comments endeared him to students and faculty alike. Brent's bizarre personality enabled him to find the humorous side of any situation. Even at work his individual personality was evident through his actions. Here, he tries to persuade a customer to buy the produce by threatening bodily harm.

MOST LIKELY TO SUCCEED

Roxanne Ruzic and Jeff Rutland

We all know that those people we think will succeed end up as bums in some alley. So here are Jeff and Roxanne, doomed to a future of ripped upholstery, graffiti, and the lonely strains of the blues on a saxophone. To earn this distinction, the two ended up in the top ten academically, with plans to go on to college. Class president his junior and senior years and member of the football and baseball teams, Jeff was a successful guy. He was a representative to Honor Seminars of San Diego and Boys' State, as well as several other leadership activities. Roxanne also took on responsibility as a representative to Honor Seminars of San Diego, Senior Class Secretary, and Editor of the yearbook. She was also a National Merit Semi-Finalist, not to mention the biggest pun-teller at C.H.S. A combination of leadership, intelligence, and personality ensures a promising future for these two pretty swell people.

MOST ATHLETIC

Jennifer Taylor and Chris Box

These two outstanding athletes were an excellent example of school spirit. Chris Box was Clairemont's only freshman varsity football player back in 1984 and was also an incredible wrestler. Jennifer played varsity basketball and also ran cross-country and track. With such a history in athletics, Chris and Jennifer are bound to be seen playing pro sports in the future.

BEST DRESSED

Stefanie Mount and Chris Dragman

These two stylin' seniors substituted Clairemont's halls as runways to model their sophisticated manner of dress. It was not an extensive or expensive wardrobe that set Stefanie and Chris apart from the crowd, but rather it was how they presented themselves as unique individuals. We expect great things from these creative and innovative fashion plates.

CUTEST COUPLE

April Harrelson and Craig Dinger

After going "steady" for more than three years, April and Craig were without a doubt the Class of 88's cutest couple. In a world where high school relationships come and go like the tide, these two have shown us that true love is still obtainable. Now that our high school lives are approaching the final curtain, the question remains: will April and Craig still be together at our ten year reunion?

PRETTIEST EYES

Shana Hale and Joe Berner

With "looks" that could stop chieftains dead in their tracks, these two had visions of loveliness. In the dazzling depths of blue and green, classmates explored the beauty of Shana's and Joe's eyes. Thankfully, the two saw fit to lower their Ray Bans for us and show off the eyes that evoked the stares of millions.

MOST INNOCENT

Tuanh Do and Pat Burrus

Tuanh and Pat were known for their somewhat quiet ways. Here, cuddling with their friends, are the stereotyped innocents. Maybe not the biggest party animals (like their friends in the picture) or the biggest flirts, these two, despite their label, were not without style or personality. Undoubtedly amused by the "innocent" label, Tuanh and Pat might have been a little less than naive. For all we knew they could have been thinking, "if only they knew . . ."

BIGGEST FLIRT

Rae Archival and Mike White

These two were noted for their winning smiles and flirtatious ways. Here Rae, in an off-the-shoulder outfit, was only too willing to play with Mike, dressed in true Chippendale fashion. Sending others on an emotional roller coaster with her feminine wiles, Rae was a charmer on the phone or in person, with strangers or friends. Making his appearance in style, Mike was always ready to give a pretty girl a wink or a friendly hello. Not willing to settle down for a minute, Rae's and Mike's philosophy was "the more the merrier."

MOST DESIRABLE

Patty Vasquez and Matt Little

Two most attractive people, Matt and Patty were welcome sights around campus. Patty, who hails from Peru, wowed the school with her cheerleading performances, long auburn hair, and a wardrobe that truly complemented her pretty figure. Matt's speed as a track star certainly didn't overshadow the athletic physique he obtained through his training. Whenever Matt or Patty passed by, hearts melted and mouths grew dry at CHS.

MOST LIKELY TO BE IN THE "LIMELIGHT"

Miepie Vyfhuizen and Chicho Mendoza

The class of '88, in particular, Miepie and Chicho, knew where the biggest ongoing party was. Whether it was known as El Torito's, Club A, or Peanuts & B, these two Chieftains could often be found living it up in some unknown watering hole, in some unknown foreign city, drinking some unknown beverages . . . with limes of course.

Times that we've forgotten,
Times we thought would last,
Now they're gone forever;
Just a "peace" of our past.

a peace of tomorrow

From brand new freshman faces to veteran junior friends, the underclass was a diverse group. Getting into the styles, out partying on the weekend, being loaded down with homework, maybe getting that all — important driver's license (and that first ticket) — all were a part of growing up at C.H.S. Class competitions and spirit days, Class of '89 and '90 t-shirts, Homecoming and pep rallies gave each year's class a chance to show it was best. This was the first year in a long time when not just the seniors, but also the underclassmen had class shirts, dances, and lots of fund raisers. Participating in clubs and on teams in and out of school, asserting independence and showing individual style were just a few of the things the underclassmen did with verve . . .

Freshmen really do have it rough. The first year in high school is very fragile and often the most challenging. Many changes must be made to meet new expectations and requirements. Freshmen must always be open to new ideas in order to adapt to high school life.

However, freshman year can prove to be very rewarding, as many friendships will grow and memories will be made that will last a lifetime.

"Umm, adjective, now what's an adjective? Man, I knew I shouldn't have bought these Mad-Libs!" says Paul Podilla.
